British Origins

About City of London Burials 1781-1904

The City of London Burials can help you locate individuals who were living in London at a particular time, ie before the date of their death. It is also likely (though you cannot be 100% sure) that they had been living in the area of London where they were buried. So if you suspect an ancestor might have been living in London, searching these records may help confirm this.

The Index covers 36,000 burials in 76 parishes in the City of London primarily for the period 1813-1854, but with a handful earlier (22 burials from 1781 to 1811) and later (29 from 1855 to 1904).

The International Genealogical Index transformed genealogical research, and made the tracing of ancestry much easier. However the IGI covers mainly baptisms, with a few marriages and no burials at all. English parish burial registers after 1813 almost always include the age at death. This is a vital detail in the further tracing of the family, but actually to find an entry is very difficult. There will rarely be any tradition or other evidence to guide you to a date. In most cases, the ancestor could have died aged anything between 25 and 100. Nowhere is tracing a burial more difficult than in the City of London, where there are so many registers to search. There are 98 burial registers, or series of registers in the City area for the period 1813-1857. Burials were ended by official order in most parishes in 1853 and in all by 1857. Many had ceased or virtually ceased to have burials for 10-15 years prior to that. To search all these registers for an ancestor would be a daunting and probably fruitless task, since the majority of burials took place outside the city.

Cliff Webb began work in 1978 on a general index to these burials. Because of the serious deficiencies in the pre-1866 death indexes at the Family Records Centre, the index carries right on to the end of the burial registers, rather than ending in 1837.

The index contains the sumame and forename, the age as given in the register, the year of burial (and in the case of St Sepulchre only the month), and the parish name. The parishes are all in the City proper, except Charterhouse Chapel (Finsbury), St Mark Myddelton Square (Clerkenwell) and St Thomas Charterhouse (Finsbury), which although just outside the City are small entities, easily missed by searchers. Finding Burials in Towns

- Many parish churches in even small towns
- Chichester – 12 parishes
- Exeter – 25 parishes
- Canterbury – 17 parishes
- These are just the Anglican parishes – there would also quite possibly be nonconformist burial grounds as well

Overcrowding in Graveyards

How Many Burials?

In his book "Gatherings from Graveyards" by G.A Walker published in 1839 he calculated from official documents that from 1741 to 1837 there were 2,105,112 burials in the metropolis

In large towns – pressure on space – clearing of churchyards
